[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Petrograd, April 8.—The advance of the Russians in the Carpathians has cut the Austrian army under General Boerovich in two places. The eastern wing of this army is in a precarious position.

The Russians captured Smolnik in the district of Lupkow.

The Russians have also thrown back the Austrians in the district of Bartfeld and in the district of Lupkow. Having advanced through the Rostok pass, they have forced a wedge between the Austrian army.

Smolnik controlled the only road through the Beskid mountains between Mezolaborcz and Uzok, a distance of 60 miles.

Western Wing Safe.

The western wing of the Austrian army has its base at Gummence and its communication along the roads into Hungary is quite safe. The eastern wing, to the contrary, is joined with the forces operating around Tok, 20 miles from the Russian position at Smolnik, by which they are threatened with attacks.

It is regarded as likely that the Austrians will be compelled to transfer their base at Uzok in the direction of Munkacs or else accept battle at Uzok, handicapped by the lack of road.

In either case the Austrians will find themselves cut off from the main army under General Boerovich and his German reinforcements. The Russians have crossed the crest of the Beskides at Gummence and apparently have a clear road to the plains of Hungary.

No Liquor Decision.

London, April 8.—The cabinet having decided to abstain from the drink question, no settlement is expected until parliament meets next week. The impression is growing that the government will content itself with bringing in a measure prohibiting the sale of spirits. Even this step will not be exclusively a government policy since nothing can be done without consultation with the other parties.

The fight for the Carpathian passes is proceeding bitterly, both sides claiming local success. The Russians are fighting in a measure, prohibiting the sale of spirits. Even this step will not be exclusively a government policy since nothing can be done without consultation with the other parties.

War News Summary

Russian Troops are pushing forward rapidly into the Carpathians, and it is reported from Petrograd that the road to the plains of Hungary now lies open before them. According to this information the Russians captured Smolnik, east of Lupkow pass, and have driven a wedge between the western and eastern wing of the Austrian army in the Beskides, placing the eastern wing in a precarious position.

Both the French and German official statements show that the new battles in the region between the Meuse and Moselle have developed into a struggle of particular severity. The Paris announcement says that gains made heretofore by the allies have been maintained in face of violent counterattacks in which the Germans suffered enormous losses.

The German account of this fight mentions French attacks at eight points and asserts all were repulsed. The German statement says the losses of the French were very heavy.

It is announced officially at Cairo that a small Turkish force is stationed in the vicinity of the Suez canal. A skirmish occurred near the canal yesterday, with no casualties on either side. It is said there are no large bodies of troops in that vicinity.

Although she has concentrated her army within the Austrian border, and her navy within striking distance of the Adriatic, Italy is still endeavoring to exhaust every means which may lead to a peaceful settlement with Austria on the question of territorial concessions.

Advices from Rome indicate that should Italy become embroiled in the war, she will not strike for some time. It is believed in Rome that the decisive struggle among the nations now at war will not begin before early summer, which would allow Italy a considerable interval in which to decide upon her policy.

The Austrian correspondent of a Tourin newspaper telegraphs he has reliable information that there is a basis for the report that Austria is seeking peace with the triple entente powers, the better to deal with Italy. Semi-official negotiations, he says, have begun.

General Pau of the French army, who has reached Naples on his way from Petrograd and the Balkan capital, corroborated the reports that the allies are preparing for a combined land and sea attack at the Dardanelles. When this attack is made, the general says, the Turkish fortifications must fall.

from the Belgian minister of war dated yesterday, which reads: "The western side of the Ypres canal in the direction of Drai Grachen has been completely freed of the enemy by Belgian troops. The German machine guns and ammunition were left in disorder, leaving behind them a confusion of arms and munitions. Today passed off quietly. The hostile artillery showed very little activity."

Out Startling War Figures.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rome, April 8.—The nations now at war have lost 5,950,000 men in the first eight months of the conflict and spent $8,400,000,000 in the first six months, according to figures prepared for the Italian socialist organ, by military experts. The article declares the only result of the war will be a wearing out of the forces engaged and not in military victory. It is calculated that nine or ten months more will exhaust the reserve of men and the country which will suffer least from this exhaustion will be Russia.

MISTAKE IN COUNT

License Forces Win by Fifteen Votes
Latest Report Says "Dry" to Ask Recount.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Superior, Wis., April 8.—After a day of surprises for "wet" and "dry" factions it was finally decided that Superior has been kept in the "wet" column by the margin of fifteen votes. Past reports Tuesday night were that the city had voted "wet" by a majority of five. Yesterday the discovery of an error in taking the count from a voting machine in the second precinct of the seventh ward gave the "drys" an apparent lead of fifty-one. Continued checking of the count gave the final victory, on returns, to the foes of prohibition last night.

The "dry" interests last night claimed that a recount will be demanded before defeat will be acknowledged. One of the most bitter campaigns in the history of Wisconsin has been waged by both factions preparatory to the election and the close result is not entirely satisfactory to either side.

Had Superior gone "dry" 150 saloons would have been put out of business on July 1. Duluth is just across the state line, would have been the nearest place with license.

EITEL'S INTERNMENT

German Cruiser Will Be Taken to
Norfolk Navy Yard to Remain
Until End of War.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Newport News, April 8.—With the internment today of the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, and her crew, the commerce destroyer ended her spectacular war career. Details of the actual internment taken to the Norfolk navy yards, where she will remain until the end of the war, were worked out at a conference early today between Admiral Fletcher, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, Rear Admiral Helm of the battleship Alabama, and Beatty, commander of the Norfolk navy yards, and Collector of Port Hamilton.

Orders issued. Secretary Daniels today gave formal orders to Rear Admiral Beatty, commanding the Norfolk navy yards, to take the Prinz Eitel Friedrich to the navy yards for internment.

Admiral Beatty will determine to what extent the ship will be dismantled. It was not thought that more will be done than to remove the breech block from her guns and detach the connecting rod of her engine. At first officers and men probably will be given freedom of Norfolk, and later the officers at least probably will be given practically unrestricted liberty of course on their promise not to violate the neutrality of the United States. It has always been customary to extend rather than curtail the liberty of interned belligerents.

Chicago, April 8.—William Weil, south side florist, who was killed yesterday by shock and strangulation during a struggle with robbers, was set upon by five men, according to a confession which the police announce today. According to the police, the man who confessed said his share of the proceeds was $11.50. Three men are under arrest and two others are sought by detectives.

Walter F. Weed, to whom the police assign the confession is eighteen years old. He implicated Wilbur Hard, twenty-three years old, a fellow prisoner, and one other man, but Hard denied a complicity in the crime. Both were formerly employed by Weil.

London, April 8.—The official information bureau issued a statement today saying the British steamer Falaba was sunk at sea March 28 by a German submarine with a loss of over 100 lives, was not armed.

"It is not true," the statement goes on, "that sufficient time was given the passengers and crew of this vessel to escape. The German submarine closed in on the Falaba, ascertained her name, signaled her to stop, and gave those on board five minutes to take to their boats. It would have been nothing less than a miracle, if all the passengers and all the crew of a good sized liner had been able to take their boats within the time allowed."

Members Narrowly Escape With Lives As Result of Storm.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

San Jose, Costa Rica, April 8.—Alfredo Gonzalez, president of Costa Rica, had a narrow escape from drowning when the presidential yacht was wrecked in the Caribbean sea three days ago. He and members of his party had to swim ashore through the surf to save their lives.

The president, accompanied by his cabinet, with groups of government officials, went on board the presidential yacht to the Talamania region on the Atlantic coast. On their way back to Port Limon a heavy northerly struck the yacht and she was driven ashore on the rocks. The passengers and crew had to take to the water. They were all successful in getting safely to dry land, but found the point where they made short to be absolutely isolated. It took the shipwrecked party two days, during which time they were without food and shelter, to walk to the nearest point on the railroad, which they could get back to the capital. They came into San Jose today.

The recital of the dangers to which the president was subjected made a deep impression on his countrymen and he was given a rousing reception as he drove through the streets of the city.

London, April 8.—A decree promulgated today by the Sultan of Turkey authorizes the ministry of war to call all men capable of bearing arms, but who heretofore were not liable for service inclusive of the ages of 19 and 20, for the defense of the Turkish coast and frontiers and the maintenance of order. The ministry also was given power to enroll for military service all immigrants for duration of mobilization. This information was contained in a dispatch received today by Reuter Telegram company from Constantinople.

Aerial Battle—Three Russ Ma-

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, via wireless, April 8.—An account of an extraordinary aerial fight was given today by the Over Seas agency, which says its information was received from Budapest. It concerns an encounter between one Austrian and three Russian aeroplanes. The Austrian aeroplane, it is said, succeeded in mounting above one of its adversaries and dropped a bomb which struck on top of the Russian aeroplane. The Russian machine plunged 1,500 yards to earth. The report goes on to say that the atmospheric disturbance caused by the fall of the aeroplane upset the other two Russian machines, causing them both to whirl down to earth.

The Over Seas news agency quotes the Neue Zürcher Zeitung as saying that two French aviators during a night flight over Strasbourg dropped bombs which fell in a prison camp in which were confined 500 French soldiers, wounding five of them severely.

Other news items given out by the Over Seas agency today are: A Petrograd Jewish society estimates that about 80,000 Jews have been driven from their homes in Warsaw and are now homeless.

The first post office between Buchovina and the interior of Austrian has been restored.

LAKE SUPERIOR OPEN

Active Preparations for Spring Ship-

Northern Ports.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 8.—Active preparations for the opening of navigation are in evidence at this point. The light house tender, Glove, steamed up today and broke a great deal of harbor ice without much trouble. The Canadian canal is ready for the first boat any time. A telegram received from Lighthouse keeper Carlson at White Fish gives the condition there as follows:

"The ice field in Lake Superior moved off about ten miles. The ice in the bay below the point is getting soft, but still intact. It is very tough for a distance of two miles below the point."

Conditions in the lower river also are becoming more favorable. Weather is improving and has been warm for the last two days with indications of further warmer temperature.

Navigation Possible Soon.

Duluth, Minn., April 8.—Ice in St. Louis bay, Duluth, is honey-combed and there are wide stretches of open water. Duluth boat crews have been able to race over a mile course during the week. The solid formation, though mostly down near the Superior entry, is 27 inches thick. Tugs have broken through this thick ice in places. It is believed another week of the present mild weather will open St. Louis bay to navigation. Steamers continue loading grain and shifting to elevators.

Lake Superior ice remains firm from Duluth eastward for about fifteen miles or so. It is about fifteen inches thick and apparently not softening to a great extent. Bayfield has only six to twelve inches of ice soft and spongy. Port Arthur reports 20 inches for twelve miles with an ice-breaker opening a channel.

FILE FEDERAL BRIEF
IN MAIL PAY CASE

Railway Mail Cases Involve Postmaster General The Right To Set Pay.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 8.—The government brief was filed today in supreme court by Assistant Attorney General Houston Thompson in the so-called railway mail pay cases, which involved $35,000,000 and effects eighty railroads.

The cases involve the right of postmaster general to change the method in adjusting railway mail pay. Previous to 1907 mail was paid for annually on the basis of an estimate made by actual weighing for 105 days, and the total by 90. This was known as the 6th day divisor. After July 1, 1907, the whole number of days was used as a divisor and this became known as the 7th day divisor. The effect was to reduce the aggregate compensation of the railroad about one-seventh. In the brief filed today the government maintained that the only restriction placed upon the postmaster general by statute was he must keep within a maximum compensation and weight of mail for periods not less than ninety days. Otherwise he was at liberty to exercise his discretion.

It argues also that the railroads having carried mail under the order of the postmaster general substituting the latter method of weighing, cannot now recover damages. The circuit court decided in favor of the government, but the roads appealed.

Not Confirmed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 8.—General Carranza's agency here laid claims to victory in a recent battle in Guanajuato state in making public today this telegram from the general, dated yesterday:

"Since yesterday morning a battle was started between Carranza's forces commanded by General Obregon and those personally lead by Villa. And I am just in receipt of a communication from General Obregon advising me he had defeated the enemy, inflicting on him a loss of over 2,000 dead and wounded and a large number of prisoners, arms and ammunition. Obregon is in pursuit of the fleeing enemy."

The state department has received no confirmation of the reported Carranza victory.

Secretary Bryan said today that the indications were not favorable for success of the proposal to neutralize Mexico City and take it out of the fighting zone.

Claim Victory.

Advices to the Villa agency here said the Carranza forces under General Herrera had been routed at Lampazos and retreated in disorder toward Nuevo Laredo. Many officers and men crossed to the American side. The Villa troops, the message said, would attack Nuevo Laredo within a week after repairing the railroads.

ITALY NEXT.

ITALY STILL DELAYS

Meanwhile Rumors of Diplomatic Messages Between Russia and Austria Continue to Be Reported.

Rome, April 8.—Italy's failure to enter the war up to the present time is explained in official circles as due to the fact that the country's statesmen do not wish to plunge the nation into the enormous risks of war without first exhausting every possible means of obtaining what the people desire without recourse to arms. It is pointed out that in the meantime Italy is gaining every day in military strength and in economic resources, by postponing her entrance into the conflict.

Official reports received here from European capitals are said to agree in the statement that the supreme clash between the allies on one side and Austro-German armies on the other, which originally seems certain to take place in May, will be postponed until June or even later.

Carasso Envoys in Rome.

Referring to the Dardanelles, these two Turks today expressed conviction that they could not be forced even with a powerful army. They describe the economic situation of the Turkish people as excellent, and deny the current reports that Germany is ruling Turkey. They said Turkey had decided to take part in the war the day the German crisis Goben was permitted to enter the Dardanelles.

Reports from Vienna.

Turin, via Paris, April 8.—The Gazette del Poia declares the reports that the Austrians are negotiating peace with Russia in order better to defend herself against Italy, are not so visionary as official communications issued at Vienna would indicate.

The correspondent of the paper at the Austrian capital professes to have obtained reliable information to the effect that the Austrian government already has opened semi-official "pour parler" with two powers of the triple entente and he believes a "dramatic surprise" is possible.

Rome, April 8.—The members of the German mission who made unsuccessful attempts to penetrate to Addis Ababa to communicate with the German minister to Abyssinia, have just arrived in Rome on their way home. Italy did not permit them passage through Eritrea but undertook to see that mail for the minister would go forward in due course.

It has been rumored that the object of this mission was to instigate the Abyssinians to attack the British forces in the Sudan. This the Germans deny, saying their purpose was only to carry mail to the minister.

The mission consisted of Herr Frobenius, the German explorer, who is described as an intimate friend of Emperor William, two secretaries and a special attache of the foreign office.

A. A. TAKES POLE FOR EARLY START AGAINST THE FEDS

National Pastime Lid Pride Off a Loud and Joyful Bang Along The Outlaw Circuit.

(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, April 8.—After an armistice since last fall, the war of the turnstiles is on again. Heavy and light artillery baseball forces are preparing today to launch their missiles of horseshoe for the 1915 season.

Inaugural of the American Association is prepared to get the jump on its old time foe—now established for two years' standing and regarded as probable more dangerous to the Association than to the big leagues—by opening its season a couple of days ahead of the Red Sox. By this jockeying, the American Association makes its bid to get—and to hold—the interest of the fans.

An "edge" of forty-eight hours or so, however, in starting the season behind the Association is not worrying the new league, according to President Gilmore. He refuses to regard the fight for fans' favor with the Association more than a by-play in the finish fight on with the American and National League.

Kansas City Squabble.

Interest in the Association today centers in the 1915 premier of Class A. A. and "big" league baseball in Kansas City. That city is again one of the real battlegrounds of the Red Sox and the Association. The fate of the two clubs hangs in the balance.

When the final bugle blows next fall, the clink of dollars at the wickets of the rival clubs may measure the future life or death of one of the rival clubs on the Kansas City scene. The American Association club insists that he will be the one walking slow behind a Red hearse, while George Stovall, the real playmaker behind the throne of Federalism in Kansas City, is equally positive that Tebeau's baseball aura will be in eclipse.

In Poor Trim.

On paper, the Kansas City Reds appear to be in poor fighting trim to start a grueling battle with their rivals. Dissection among the Red managers this spring regarding the Kawfeds' management for the season hasn't helped to boost the Reds in public favor. Stovall first kicked over the traces by flatly turning down the managerial reins. Then President Gilmore tried to get Bill Phillips, former manager of the defunct, but champion, Indianapolis team to take the job.

While these troubles were smarting the Kawfeds, Tebeau was having his only little troubles and private spats with the schedule makers of the American Association. He went to the mat with Mike Camillon and A. P. Timme regarding the tentative schedule, which Tebeau insisted, gave Kansas City a raw deal. These internal squabbles have all been brushed away, however, and their bones merely left to rattle in the family closets of baseball by their respective owners, until today when both teams waiting at the barrier with spikes set for the first dash to the initial bag of the season. Incidentally, the magnates predict that the bags at the end of the race will be filled with profits.

Hardly an owner or manager of the American Association exists today who is not dreaming pennant dreams as the season has its curtain raiser. Far be it from me to bring down veils of wrath from midwestern fandom by essaying to pick the winners at long distance, but it sure looks like a nifty race for the old Association rag. The teams have, during the winter's lay off, been strengthened both by purchases, trades and drafts. The Millers and Saints are both much stronger on paper than last year for their inter-city rivalry as well as the big race out in the country. Tebeau's bunch in Kansas City are also expected to surprise the enemy before July, without making an prediction as to the "thereafter."

In Minor Leagues.

Opening of the "little big" leagues' season is almost overshadowed, except in home towns, of the clubs, by the inaugural next week of the big league season. Practically all of the big leaguers are on their home stamping grounds today, some mixing in ante-season inter-city scraps, but all stirring the fans blood to fever heat. While the Reds will also get the jump on "O. B." by opening a few days ahead of their older rivals, the races in the National and American leagues promise to be tighter than ever. While most everybody is predicting a "home" worlds series at Boston next October, the real wise ones are softly chirping of some startling reversals of form and a mussy mix-up of the Grand Old Dope. Here in Gotham the fans can't see anything to it but the Giants in the National, even giving the Boston Braves full credit for not being a flash in the pan. Bill Donovan's Yankees are also putting new hopes in the bloods of the bleachers.

"If I can win over George Chip Jack Dillon and Jimmy Glabby within the next six months and so stage out as the recognized champion middle-weight boxer of the world I shall retire from the ring." That's the latest from Mike Gibbons, Mike says his aged parents and his wife have begged him to quit the roped arena and he says he feels he can afford to do this now that he has an income that nets him $450 a month. "But I'd like to be the recognized champ of the middles before I'm through," says Mike.

William Donovan and Christy Mathewson have been acquainted for some years. Their game Matty ever won for the Giants was played on April 26, 1901. Bill Donovan, twirling for Brooklyn, was the opposing pitcher. Christy trimmed him by a count of 5 to 3.

Regardless of the lawsuits hanging fire and threatened, many big insiders of O. B. profess to believe that baseball's biggest and most successful year is dawning. There's a tip that all this legal chatter is to be soft pedaled, at least as far as possible, after the camp yells "Play ball!"

Ed Walsh, former star White Sox pitcher, may be left behind on the Pacific coast when the team returns to Chicago. Manager Rowland said: "Walsh is going poorly. He may improve, but if he doesn't there is strong chance he may be left on the coast permanently. The sample applies to Benz."

Ty Cobb pulled off a Tris Speaker trick against New Orleans a few days ago. New Orleans had the bases filled with two out. Coyle came to bat. Bagby, the Pelican runner on, fell. Cobb, who was at first base, kept edging toward the bag and Catcher Peters was very much awake. The ball to Cobb and Bagby was nipped by two strides.

Joe Jackson, writer, not slagger, tells a story in the Detroit News of how the town of Guilford, where the Tigers trained, was paying two bloodhounds to track some burglars and hold-up men. Unfortunately, however, before the hounds could be put to test, two prisoners escaped from the county jail and stole the tracking canines.

Those Boston Braves never think about Pitcher Aitchison of the Dodgers without a longing akin to a desire for murder welling up in their souls. Aitchison was the particular jinx of the Braves last year. Nine times they faced him, and eight times he returned them back beaten—and badly beaten, at that. The Braves, rushing along like madmen after the first part of July, were irresistible until they encountered Aitchison. And then it was different. Other clubs could beat Aitchison, but the Braves couldn't. Aitchison won only twelve games in 1914—and eight were from the Braves.

Frank Huelsman, the minor league Jailer, has signed to play with Omaha. Frank has been hitting 400 or better most of his career and is the style of hitter who should make every one a home run in the Western league.

The biggest player in organized baseball has been discovered. He's Robert Wray, who plays with the Fort Smith (Ark.) club. Wray is seven feet two inches and weighs 240 pounds. Special hotel accommodations for the giant have to be obtained when the team is traveling.

Scribes all over the country are hating much fun with the reported announcement that Jim Hart wants to return to the prize ring. Hart is thirty-eight years old and since his knockout by Carl Morris in the third round in 1911, he's been a deputy sheriff in a county, Kentucky. Ten years ago last April, 28, Hart got a decision over Jack Johnson in twenty rounds.

New York and Boston Team Already Planning on Next World Series.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New York, April 8.—The 1915 pennant fight in the National league probably will be between the Giants and the Braves. Unless some miracle is wrought in Philadelphia, Pirates, Cubs, Cardinals and Reds will not figure very largely in the bunting battle.

But don't bet against the chance of the Sox, that was ascertained last year in the case of the Braves. None of the six teams mentioned looks strong enough—on paper—to give a real battle to the Braves or Giants. But you never can tell.

Testrean probably will be the Giant's mainstay this year. Mathewson is getting old, but he should have a good year. Matty, if not worked too often, ought to be good for at least 60 per cent of his games. It is not certain at this writing whether Marquard will be with the Giants when the season opens. Even if he is it is not certain what he will do. He may have a good year—and he may not. Fromme, another of the Giant's veterans, probably will be worked only as a relief pitcher.

Schupp, Schauer, Ritter and Palmer look better than the other young twirlers.

The Giant infield probably will be Merkle at first, Doyle at second, Fletcher at short, and Lobert at third. None of the youngsters seem to be good enough to replace the veterans, at least at the start of the season.

In the outfield McGraw will have Burns as certainty in left field. For the other two fields he will have Robertson, Piez, Bescher, Snodgrass, Murray and Thorpe. To draw from the chances favoring Bescher, Robertson and Snodgrass.

Behind the bat McGraw is well fortified. He has a star in Smith, secured from the Savannah club. Elmer Johnson, another recruit, isn't such a bad catcher. Meyers and McLean are the veterans. Both have passed their prime—but both still are pretty good at clubbing and also at backstopping.

The Braves' infield, probably, is the strongest in the National league. Schmidt, at first, is a sure fielder and a good hitter. Evers, at second—well, what's the use of telling about him? At short there's Maranville, the most marvelous shortstop that is playing the game today. J. Carlisle Smith, at third, although he does not measure up to the standard of his three mates, is a good fielder and a fair hitter.

The acquisition of Sherwood Magee has greatly strengthened the Braves' infield. Magee's presence adds at least 50 per cent to the offensive and defensive power of the outfield. With Cather, Moran, "Slugging" Joe Connolly and Gilbert as company for Magee, the outfielding department of the Braves will be taken care of better than ever before.

Behind the bat there's "Hammering" Hank Gowdy, who has hit enough in himself, but the Braves also have Bert Whaling, one of the best fielding backstops in the game, and three recruits—Fred Taylor, Walter Trageser and Frank Buggy.

MILAN IS AMBITIOUS TO LEAD AMERICAN LEAGUE IN BASE STEALING AGAIN IN 1915

Clyde Milan.

Clyde Milan of Washington is ambitious to lead the American league in base running again next season. He is much lighter this spring than he has been in some time, and he expects to have all his old speed. Milan was out of the running last season, due to a serious injury, but the year before he lead the league with eighty-eight pilfers.

JOE BENZ IS NOW READY FOR BATTLE

Joe Benz.

Joe Benz's rapid return to shape has been the most remarkable feature of the White Sox training trip. Today he is further advanced than the White Sox officials had expected by July 1. He is almost ready to pitch a complete game without extending his strength. When he went to California a few weeks ago it was as a physical wreck.

All three are highly touted.

The Braves have no cause for worry about the pitching department. They will have as veterans "Big Bill" James and Dick Dudoiph, who performed in such wonderful fashion last year, and "Lefty" Tyler, who pitched marvelous ball from July until the end of the season, and a swarm of youngsters.

Included among the "youngsters" are George Davis, who pitched a no-hit game last season and who is reported to be ready for regular duty in 1915; Cottrill, Crutcher, Strand and Cochran, who were on the Braves' roster last year, and Luque, secured from Jersey City, where he made a great record.

WHITE TO HAVE HARD BATTLE WITH DUFF IN BUFFALO TONIGHT.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New York, April 8.—Charlie White and Jimmy Duffy are to box a scheduled ten rounds in the Coliseum arena at Buffalo, N. Y., tonight. They are making 135 pounds at 3 o'clock this evening, which will give the Lockport Irishman some four or five pounds over the Chicago left-hooker.

Buffalo has been waiting for this fight for over a year, in fact, ever since Charles shaded James for ten rounds in the same arena. The fans there believe Duffy will reverse things this time, and they will be present in droves to watch the quarrel. It Charles nails Jimmy with his left hook, Buffalo will be in gloom tomorrow.

Duffy is a willing boxer, and White will fight anybody that will fight him, so the throng that is going to watch the battle should be well repaid for its trouble.

MILLER'S BOWLING QUINT DEFEATS BELOIT FIVE

Miller's bowling stars rolled a Beloit team at the Main street alleys last night, defeating them by 141 pins. Janesville hit a total of 2612 to 2471. Newman rolled the high game for the evening, with 211. The summary:

YOUNG SCOTTY MEETS KID MAHONEY AGAIN

Young Scotty, the pride of Jones Island, and Kid Mahoney, the clever Racine featherweight, who fought a whirlwind battle here, have been matched for ten rounds in Milwaukee for Monday night at the South Side A. C. club. Billy Krammer, the Wisconsin welterweight champ, and Billy Walters will meet in the wind-up. Young Scotty has been going at a fast clip and his Janesville followers expect him to trim the Racine boy on Monday. The match here was a good draw.

NEW CUB PITCHER ONCE HAD AMBITION TO BE A BACKSTOP

Karl T. Adams.

Karl T. Adams, who has won a lower berth with the Chicago Cubs, is one of the few successful pitchers who started out to do something else. Karl aspired to be a catcher, but only in his kid days, for he discarded the mitt and mask even before he became prominent as an amateur in his home town, Montgomery, Ala.

SIZE doesn't count in a chew of tobacco any more than it does in men. It's quality that counts. A big wad doesn't do any good.

But just a little of the Real Tobacco Chew tucked away in your cheek makes you so contented you want to share the discovery with the first man you meet.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—cut fine, short shred—seasoned and sweetened just enough, cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind it on with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

BANKRUPTS ALL.

Monsieur Ribot, the French minister of finance, announced in the French chamber of deputies that at these rates France's total war expenditure to the end of March would be about $4,600,000,000 francs, or roughly, $1,800,000,000, a daily expenditure of $7,000,000. Of this sum, $4,600,000,000 francs had been advanced by the Bank of France, and $3,820,000,000 had been advanced by the public on national bonds of various kinds; hence, the balance must have been provided either by the receipts of extraordinary taxation or by a floating indebtedness.

The French national debt before the war amounted in round figures to $6,500,000,000; the departmental debt to $200,000,000 and the commercial debt to $890,000,000; a total of $7,590,000,000, and to this sum, since the beginning of the war to the present time, the fresh indebtedness of the nation alone will add $1,880,000,000. During the war, also, the chancellor of the British exchequer, Mr. Lloyd-George, stated to parliament that Great Britain's war expenses to the first of August would exceed $3,500,000,000, which is about a billion more than Mr. Asquith's original estimate. This means a daily expenditure of $9,850,000.

"We are without accurate figures of the Russian expenditure, and Belgium's and Serbia's, but it is safe to say that the total cost of the Triple Entente and their allies is not far from $90,000,000 a day, and of Germany and Austria combined about $25,000,000, sums so vast that in less than three weeks this bill will amount to a sum larger than the entire interest-bearing debt of the United States."

These figures from the Christian Herald are so immense that it is difficult to grasp their significance. They represent not only the money paid out, but in no way account for the destruction of property, which is appalling. Bankruptcy is the only word which describes it and worse the bankruptcy confronts the nations involved, for the slaughter of human life and the loss of productive energy, will be keenly felt for years to come.

SIGNIFICANT.

The Chicago election last Tuesday has a broader significance than simply the election of a republican mayor in a democratic city. The balance of power, in all large cities, is in the hands of the irresponsible masses. Men who own no property and never pay a dollar tax.

The pinch of hard times is keenly felt, by this class of voters, and many of them are having plenty of time to think. They have discovered that something is radically wrong with the country, and they naturally hold the party in power responsible.

The result of the Chicago election is a straw which shows the direction of the wind, and enough of these straws will be in evidence long before the election of 1916 to influence business and aid in restoring confidence.

Just as soon as it becomes reasonably certain that the republican party will be in control, after the next national election, just so soon will idle money seek investment, and the whole of industry will again be in motion.

In our admiration for men like Roosevelt and Wilson, we have drifted away from the fact that the party is greater than any man connected with it, and we sometimes lose sight of the fact that the life of a republic depends on parties.

The two great parties, which have shaped the destiny of this country for more than half a century, will continue to control it for time to come.

Leaders come and go, but not so the parties so firmly established.

We enjoyed prosperity so long, under republican rule, that we became intoxicated with it, and lack of appreciation made us indifferent. But two years of democracy and inefficiency have brought us to our senses and before the date of the next election we will be ready to return to the fold.

The republican party is a party of fulfillment. The democratic party is a party of promise and experiment. It has made a failure of national government, whenever in control, and it is a failure today.

While the man in the White House may be important, the party behind him is vastly more important. The country survived under Andy Johnson. The Chicago election is the forerunner of republican victories, and a return of prosperity.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

It is announced that the annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association is to be the 27th of the present month. This will give an opportunity for those members who have become dissatisfied with the existing conditions to air their opinions, and if it is sufficient numbers, to change the complexion of the board of directors and the policy of the association. It has only been a question of managerial policy that has been discussed. No question as to the integrity and honesty of the present board of directors or the officers of the association has been raised. There has been no intimation that the funds of the association have not been handled to the proper disbursement of the last penny; it has simply been a question of policy. Men interested in the Y. M. C. A. work have deplored the fact that the local association is at odds, as it were, with the state association. They have deplored the fact that no regular meetings have been held, reports made and the affairs of the association made public. They have regretted that the membership, instead of being less than four hundred, as stated by the general secretary, is not a thousand, and that the association does not reach out and benefit more of the young men of the city. It has simply been a question of policy. Nothing else has been discussed. Now that the general meeting of the members has been called it is a time to remedy all these matters and it is to be hoped that the matter will be adjusted so that the association will be able to do the work it was designed for, the work for which the money contributed was subscribed for, without any further friction between men who are all working for the same results—the best interests of the community as a whole.

While there is a difference in opinion in the legislature regarding various matters of legislation of importance to the state, one of the strongest combinations in the field of politics has been uncovered by the consolidation of the liquor and the educational interests. The two factions have apparently agreed on trading votes on educational matters and the normal school lobby can be credited with the combination that he hoped the history of politics. It will be peculiar if some of the men now so closely allied do not hesitate to cast a united ballot when matters of state interest are being considered. Politics makes strange bed fellows but as an old fellow would say, "This beats the Dutch."

The return to sanity as evidenced by the sweeping republican victory in the civic elections in both Chicago and St. Louis, is ever more remarkable when everything is considered. If the general election was but six months off it would be safe to predict that the voters of the United States would return to sanity and send a republican president to Washington, backed by a republican congress. It is, however, a warning that the democratic party would do well to consider.

It would appear that Joseph Davies has abdicated his throne as democratic dictator for Wisconsin, has turned the reins of government over to Senator Paul Hastings, and that in the future the patronage will be handled by that gentleman and not by the Davies-Aylward contingent.

SNAP SHOTS

What has become of the old-fashioned girl who indicated her love and affection for a man by crocheting a necktie and giving it to him for a Christmas present?

Tank Beverly says that, while he always is reluctant to whip his own wife, he greatly enjoys seeing another man whip his.

A hypothetical question of 13,000 words never seems very long to one who has heard an elderly man tell his favorite story.

Luckily, a man's standing in his community is not measured by what his poor relatives say of him.

Buck Kilby, whose own matrimonial adventure was infelicitous, makes it a rule never to congratulate the happy bridegroom.

The rule is that if you are to enjoy the performance you must pay for the privilege of observing it.

Some family quarrels begin when father and mother quarrel. The others start directly after the will is read.

"It is the sort of community," said Eph Sawyer yesterday in referring to his native town, "where you still can start an argument by referring slightly to John Brown."

Jab Swisegood, who belongs to thirteen lodges, says he has never been able to find out what their secrets are.

The smaller the town the greater the probability that you will be compelled to buy tickets to an amateur performance of the drama.

WILSON'S NIECE INTERPRETS "SPIRIT OF IRELAND" IN PANTOMIME

Miss Margaret Vale, a niece of President Wilson, well known on the legitimate stage as a rising young emotional actress and on the screen as a moving picture star, appeared before the University Forum of America, a social club of college men and women, at a New York hotel on St. Patrick's eve in a delightful pantomime dance, entitled "The Spirit of Ireland." The grace of the dancer as she portrayed the spirit of the Irish nation held the audience spellbound. The picture shows Miss Vale at the left and Miss Hilda Carling at the right. Miss Vale is well known in society circles for her athletic activities.

The Real Book.
The German book is green; The Russian book is white or black, none of these books I've seen. Perhaps I've got the colors wrong, but, then, whatever their hue, They merely tell what they believe the other fellows do. A Belgian book, a British book, and there's the book of France. The Turks will just a blank book leave, to print they get no chance. The poor Serbs have no book at all, because that fighting breed Are all so busy making war they have no time to read. And while the rest are writing books, our Uncle Sam should do A bit of writing of his own—a book, red, white and blue.

Famous Remarks of Auto Bugs.
"Ain't she pickin' 'em off fine? She runs like a watch." "I ain't had to lift the hood on this car for a month and a half only to fill the oil tank." "I never found out until I got to the top of the hill that I had been running on wind and that I hadn't had any gasoline in my tank for an hour."

Always Thus.
Concerning the longitude and latitude in which some of these sea disasters have occurred, it seems as though the warships have taken entirely too much latitude.

And on Other Days.
Earnest inquirer (collecting statistics for work on temperance)—And how many glasses of beer would you—come in a day?

The Drayman—Well, I can't say, guv'nor. Some day 'as about 20 or 30, an' then again, another day, perhaps I might have quite a lot.

Something in a Name.
A man named Shoemaker has been given a place on the Philadelphia bench, which is another step toward the eternal fitness of things.

Hush!
Great care must be taken with the Fourth of July celebrations this year. We must do nothing that will offend Germany or England.

Maybe It's a Disease.
We have seen Przasnysz in the war dispatches, and would like to rise to a point of order and ask whether it is a real town or a typographical error.

The Real Thing.
It's easy enough to be pleasant When life flows by like a song. But the man worth while is the man who can smile.

When the supper don't come along. It's easy enough to be pleasant When thoughts seem to come pouring out. But the man worth while can just grind out a pile.

When there's nothing to write about. It's easy enough to be pleasant When buying your seeds at the store. But the man worth while is the one who can smile.

When he raises rank weeds, nothing more.

"PATRIOTISM."
Patriotism in Europe is allowing one's family to starve for the sake of country.

Not Here.
Many editors throughout the country are closing their columns to liquor advertisements in the cause of temperance. It would do no good in this town, as no one ever heard of a man who scanned the advertising columns to find out where he could get a drink.

Plaints About Objections to Teeth are Unreasonable

Because of the fact that defective teeth resulted in the turning down of a large number of Calgary men at the headquarters for recruiting soldiers, a certain amount of grumbling has been heard locally at what some are pleased to term "red tape methods" on the part of the recruiting officers. Yet, during the Boer War large numbers of men were invalided home not merely because they had some bad teeth, but because they had become liable to disease owing to the general condition of the body set up by bad teeth.

TOWNSHIPS PROVIDE A LARGE ROAD FUND FOR WORK IN 1916

Total of $27,205 for Highways and $5,100 for Bridges Appropriated at Town Meetings.

Townships of Rock county appropriated a total of $27,205 for the construction of six more town highways in 1916 and $5,100 for bridges at the annual town meetings held on Tuesday, according to figures which have been received officially by County Highway Commissioner Charles E. Moore. The county and state will each appropriate a like amount which will make $81,600 available for the building of new highways, a fund somewhat larger than the one which will be expended this year.

The town of Janesville provided the road fund voting to raise $2,700 and $300 for bridges. Other towns which made large appropriations were Plymouth $2,105, Turtle $2,000 and Lima, $1,500. Those familiar with the situation interpret the verdict of the town meetings as favorable to the present state aid road law in Wisconsin and indicating that farmers are coming to realize more and more the value and importance of an improved highway system. The extension of permanent roads in Rock county is going forward at the rate of $100,000 a year which proves that the county is truly and staunchly enlisted in the good roads movement. In addition to the amounts provided for construction the repair fund necessarily grows larger each year as the cost of maintenance increases with the addition of new roads to the system.

Following are the amounts appropriated by the various towns: Avon, $500; Beloit, $1,000 and $250 for bridges; Bradford, $1,000; Center, $1,000; Clinton, $1,500; Fulton, $1,200; Harmony, $1,200; Janesville, $2,700; Madison, $1,000; Johnsonston, $800; Lima, $1,500; Magnolia, $1,000 and $700 for bridges; Milton, $1,200; Newark, $1,200 and $1,500 for bridges; Plymouth, $2,105; Porter, $1,700 and $1,700 for bridges; Rockford, $1,500 and $200 for bridges; Spring Valley, $200 and $250 for bridges; Turtle, $2,000; and Union, $1,600.

Reports on the amounts appropriated by the various towns in the county will be forwarded to State Engineer A. R. Hirst.

SIX ARE SENTENCED ON DRUNK CHARGES; ARREST ZINC THIEF

Seven Men Before Municipal Court This Morning for Breaches of Public Peace.

It was like "old times" in the municipal court this morning when there were seven men arraigned in the "spree row" six of whom were up for drunkenness and one for larceny. Four of the men were from other cities, in Janesville searching for work and as Chief Campion expressed, "They can be out of work—beginning for food—but still find means of getting 'boozed' enough to get drunk. How they do it is a mystery."

Charles Hinkle, River street, paid penalty of four months in the county jail for stealing fifty pounds of zinc, worth fifteen dollars, from the Badger State Brewing company April 1st.

The brewery owners had stored stock of equipment in an old dance hall in the city where Hinkle ripped off the bar boards and carried away in a wagon. It was "April fool" for him for he was arrested last night and in court admitted his guilt to Judge Maxfield. Lack of work was his reason for the crime, he stated. The charge of burglary was not made out against him, the warrant was for Attorney Dumwiddle alleging petit larceny.

Defers Sentence.
Frank Lasowski, drayman, was placed under the state board of control when Judge Maxfield deferred sentence on the young man for a period of one year.

Lasowski was drunk and was picked up by the police after a fight with several days' intoxication. He admitted that he had violated his pledge taken in court about six months ago and the state paroling sentence was imposed. If violations are proved, it will mean state's prison.

Sent to Hospital.
Andrew Dowling of Green Bay appeared in court gently rubbing a badly colored eye that must have been the result of a "Willard" wallop or a bad fall to the sidewalk. He pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly and was given ten days in default of a seven dollar fine.

Edward Walrath was charged with second offense drunkenness, and because of his crippled condition due to an injury, was sent to the county hospital where he is to be confined until recovery. Walrath pleaded guilty to the count, but his plea was impressive enough to warrant the court extending him county jail.

George Baxter of Rockford finds his home town very dry and consequently came to Janesville in search of a job. He did not find the job, but found plenty of liquor. Ten days was his sentence.

Frank Amolin drew fifteen days in default of a ten dollar fine for being four drunk and disorderly at the Milwaukee railroad station.

Adjourns Case.
Judge Maxfield adjourned the case against Jerry Murphy, charged with second offense drunkenness, for two weeks and allowed Murphy his liberty.

Murphy was charged with violating by confession was caused the name of Jerry A. Miller to be erroneously connected with the case.

Go-to-Church Sunday, April 11th.

Immutability.
In a field that I passed there was uncharted, not long ago, the great country grange of a Roman settler, with its refectory, its little cloistered court, its baths and chambers, and storehouses. And it may all last on, hardly changing, for another thousand years, or longer still.—A. C. Benson in the North American Review.

ARRIVAL OF A BRITISH STEAMER AT RIO JANEIRO STARTS SPECULATION

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Rio Janeiro, April 8.—The British steamer Ismailia came into Rio Janeiro today and no sooner had she dropped anchor than speculation was rife as to her real character.

She has on board 148 passengers and the captain declares his destination is the Falkland Islands. Lack of coal compelled him to come in here. He declined any further explanation nor has it been possible to learn why such a large number of passengers are going to the Falklands.

British warships still are believed to be in Falkland waters, and it is being said here that the Ismailia is a transport taking 140 officers and men to reinforce their crews.

ALL U. S. EXPORTS TO SWEDEN USED IN THAT COUNTRY

Ira N. Morris.

The Washington government has just received through Ira N. Morris, the United States minister to Sweden, an important statement from the Swedish ministry of foreign affairs. In this statement, the Swedish government assures the United States that all goods exported from this country to Sweden are used in the latter country. There has been a suspicion in England that many American goods sent to Sweden partly have been re-exported into Germany.

CROWDS GREET CHAMP AT FLORIDA POINTS

Stations Are Crowded With People, Anxious to Get Glimpse of Jess Willard, on Way to New York.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Dayton, Fla., April 8.—Jess Willard, the new heavyweight champion, continued northwest today on his journey to New York, with crowds of excited persons flocking at each stop around the Florida route train to greet him.

Whether the train was scheduled to stop or not, it seemed to make no difference. There were crowds of people waiting at each station, and the train was crowded with people who came miles to catch a glimpse of him. Where the train stopped the car in which Willard was riding was boarded by scores who tried to shake his hands. In nearly every instance spectators outside demanded a speech. He tried to meet all demands with the result he was extremely busy every time the train stopped.

Many amusing incidents occurred during the early portion of the trip. Just before the train left Key West, the engineer, an elderly man, came to Willard's car and introduced himself, saying:

"Mr. Willard, I want to congratulate you and I am proud to shake your hand. I have hauled several prize fighters over this line during my time, but never took the trouble to shake their hands, but I am mighty glad of this opportunity."

"In Times of War Prepare For Peace." Is New French Slogan

Paris, April 8. (By Mail to New York.) "In times of war prepare for peace." This is the slogan hereafter to be used in the French Chamber of Deputies, headed by Deputy Frederic Brunet of the Department of the Seine. Just as France possibly might be misled in times of peace into not preparing more fully for war, so Deputy Brunet declares she will make even a greater mistake now that she has war if she fails to take preparation for peace.

With the certainty of a victorious peace only a question of time, Brunet declares France will not only lose a great portion of its income, but will come with it but will find itself utterly unable to cope with the economic problems which will then be presented unless she begins immediately her preparations. Already Brunet has prepared a series of proposals to this end and these are to be introduced at once into the French parliament.

The bulk of these proposed measures have to do largely with the material advantages and preparation of peace. Brunet has also made provision in them for what will prove the beginning of the realization in France of the dreams of idealists the world over—the establishment of working men on a basis of their own industry.

One of the first problems which Brunet declares France will face the moment peace comes will be the rehousing of the cities, villages, hamlets and huts which have been destroyed not only in the invaded districts of France but of Belgium as well. If that problem is allowed to go until peace has come, Brunet declares France will not find herself in a position to solve it. With the heavy losses of human lives entailed by the war she will find herself without the material resources for such a project.

Brunet's first law project therefore provides for the immediate reopening of all factories and industries engaged in the production of material for the building of houses. A brickyard he declares in all France must be allowed to remain closed at the present moment. Every industry must be kept working over time, while the working mills, where doors and windows, frames and casements are made have before them a task in building the materials for the rebuilding of the French towns and villages that will tax them to their utmost capacity unless they begin at once.

What applies to these building material industries, Brunet insists applies with more or less urgent force to practically every other productive industry of France. If, when peace comes, France must wait a year or two before the material destroyed by the war can be replaced in order to permit of a resumption of her normal industrial and commercial life would come from her dearly bought victories.

In preparing his proposed laws for government help in the reopening of these industries, Brunet has another object in view. With the outbreak of the war, France at once put into force the most extensive measures of providing charity to the unemployed. Vast numbers are everywhere being sent to this end and especially at Paris and the other larger cities, although a goodly portion of this is now coming from private and other sources, still at least one third is coming out of the annual budget.

This money, the Seine deputy insists, should go instead to aid the manufacturers to reopen their factories and provide employment for the workers. France's preparation for reaping all of the advantages of the peace that is to come would thus also be assured.

Brunet's proposed laws which are to come at once before the Chamber of Deputies will propose the issuing of industrial warrants similar to those already issued for the encouragement of agricultural development. These will permit the advances out of the government treasury of as much as 500 francs to enable the manufacturers to secure the materials and labor and to carry the stock of finished products on hand until the end of the war creates the market for them. These warrants, Brunet insists, must be secured and used by the manufacturers. Where this material has been cornered and is being held by speculators the government will have the right to requisition it. It is practical, he says, at this time to issue warrants for the materials which have been cornered and is being held by speculators. The government will have the right to requisition it. It is practical, he says, at this time to issue warrants for the materials which have been cornered and is being held by speculators.

ESSEN NOTED FOR HOUSE OF KRUPP

German City Became Important Only Recently, Through Big Steel Industry.

Describing the city of Essen, Germany, and the great industrial organization that has made it famous, the National Geographic Society in today's statement concerning the geography of the European war, says:

"The town of Essen might just as well have been named 'Krupp.' Of course, Essen was founded centuries before the House of Krupp, but it is of very recent growth. It is, in fact, a product of the famous firm. Almost everybody in Essen nowadays depends for his living upon the firm of Krupp, and Essen is a town of 300,000 population. It might also be pointed out that while the horizon of Essen is about limited by Krupp steel, the horizon of the world is limited by the city, with numerous branches, iron-ore mines, coal mines, smelters, an industrial village bearing its name, foundries in Berlin and other cities, and a shipyard at Kiel.

"Essen is situated in the heart of a rich coal and iron country and upon a network of railways that reach to all the chief mining and industrial centers of the Rhine-Ruhr province, twenty miles northeast of Dusseldorf. The streets of the town are clear and well laid out. The houses, for the most part, are of brick, built and belong to the firm of Krupp. There is, however, a thick atmosphere of industrial gloom over the city. It looks drab in spite of paint, and cheerless in spite of the vastness of its labor force. There is no single lighter feature to redeem the city which has been called into the world by the firm of Krupp, about which numerous notices have been printed since the war's outbreak. It is little more than 100 years old. However, it is some years since a prominent Frenchman wrote a thick volume about the Dynasty of Krupp, in which he considers this family's fortune as large enough to be classed among the Seven World Wonders.

The foundation of the Krupp firm at Essen on the Ruhr occurred in the year 1812. It was in the first days of cast steel, and at that time the English steel industry led the world almost to a degree of monopoly. Alfred Krupp's works were established for the manufacture of cast steel. The early days of the firm were days of bitter and, apparently, fruitless struggle. As late as 1848, thirty-six years after their foundation, the Krupp work employed only seventy men. But then the use of railway cars and cast steel became an important article of commerce. About this time, too, the owner went into the work of developing guns and armor. The factory forged the cast steel guns and whose thunder the empire was forged and welded.

The founder of the factory died before realizing the success of his life's venture. His fourteen-year-old son took up the burden, continuing the establishment's slow progress. After 1848, the struggle was finally won. The Krupp works sold their goods throughout Germany. They had customers in more than half of the countries of Europe. By 1873, 12,000 workmen were employed, and the firm had begun to find its way around the world. In the early 50's of the century, the firm had established for its workmen a sick-aid and pension fund, from which the German empire was to draw the inspiration that led to the establishment of a state insurance service.

The firm has always remained the personal property of the Krupp family. It is owned today by Bertha Krupp, who, in 1906, married the Prussian diplomat, formerly attached to the embassy at Washington, Dr. Gustav von Bohlens and Halbach. Just before Bertha Krupp took over the administration purposes of the stock company. All but four shares of $250 each were taken over by Miss Krupp. The firm's capital was placed at $8,000,000.

"The Krupp steel works now employ more than 45,000 men in Essen alone. The firm has one of the most highly developed social service systems in operation in existence anywhere. It maintains a complete system of stores, hospitals, general and maternity; boarding houses, pension, accident, and sick benefit funds, besides being partner with its employees in a number of other social enterprises. The Krupps make all manner of things of steel, but—and this mainly constitutes their world renown—the Krupp gunshops have a unique support from its own army. They have made and unmade maps and empires. Bertha Krupp is known in her fatherland as the 'Cannon Queen.'

WILL NEED BIG SUM AT NEW STATE HOME

Annual Appropriation of $100,000 Will Be Required to Build New Institution.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., April 8.—That an annual appropriation of $100,000 will be necessary to provide for new buildings for the southern home for the feeble minded at Union Grove is the statement contained in a report by the state board of control sent to each member of the legislature today. "Even this will not meet the increasing demand for the proper segregation and care of these classes of defectives," declares the report.

The report says that the legislature of 1909 recognized the institution at Chippewa Falls was overcrowded and the legislature of 1913 appropriated $300,000 for the purchase of a site and for the construction of the new building. The site finally selected is the location near Union Grove, on the line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company, seven and one-half miles west of Chippewa Falls. It comprises 18 acres at a cost of $53,867.50. The report states that an additional eight acres will be needed, and if this land cannot be purchased at a reasonable price "we shall resort to condemnation proceedings."

A canvass was made of the state of Wisconsin to determine what proportion of the inmate population of what proportion of feeble-minded institutions. "With this information and with the information gained from visitation of other institutions and with the reports received from them, a plan for the complete institution has been adopted. The institution, when completed, which will take approximately twenty years, will provide for 650 feeble-minded and 816 epileptic."

"It is the purpose for the first few years at least, to care for the younger classes at the institution at Chippewa Falls and at this institution to make provision for those classes of whom no room is now provided and who are now being committed to county asylums for the chronic insane. The first structures required are an administration building, power house, coal shed, two cottages and school

The Government Guarantee Clause On Food Labels Does Not Protect You

THE WESTFIELD STANDARD DOES!

Eighteenth of a series to appear on the Food Page of this paper each Thursday

FOR many years housewives have been lulled into a false sense of security by the phrase, "Guaranteed Under the Food and Drug Act," as it appears on the label of package, bottle or box containing foods or beverages. The housewife and the grocer have naturally assumed that the government had analyzed and approved the contents of each package that carried this meaningless guarantee.

Unscrupulous manufacturers have taken advantage of this condition to foist upon the public many products containing harmful chemical preservatives, flavors, colors and with such unjust prosecution that the guaranty clause was inserted into the Food and Drug Act. The dealer, usually a small retailer, is not in a position to know whether or not the food products he handles comply with the law.

It is clear, then, that the manufacturer and not the United States Government guarantees the goods. It is furthermore clear that the manufacturer may introduce into his foods any of the score or more of drugs, dyes, chemicals, bleaches, fillers, etc., provided he tells the truth on the label. So it comes about that we have an "Honest Label Law," not a "Pure Food Law." The guarantee legend is new to cheapening fillers that they have not stated on the label.

It developed that the public were blindly buying products which would never have been tolerated had the housewife known that they contained such chemicals as alum, benzoate of soda, coal tar dyes, etheral flavors, saccharine and other chemical concoctions—because of the supposed Government Guarantee on the label.

The purpose of the guarantee was to protect the local dealer from unjust prosecution. For example: A Massachusetts grocery firm sold lemon extract containing wood alcohol. The extract was manufactured in a nearby state, and the Massachusetts grocer was heavily fined for selling the adulterated product. In one sense this was unjust, as the grocer had no means of knowing of the deadly nature of the extract which he purchased in good faith. Pure justice demanded that not the grocer, but the manufacturer, be fined. It was to do away with this kind of thing that the government guarantee was abolished. The government not stated on the label.

Chemist, Dr. Carl L. Aisberg, in a recent letter to the McClure Publications, says: "It conveyed the impression that the government guaranteed or approved the product or in some way endorsed the manufacturer's guaranty. Certain manufacturers and dealers, through advertisements and statements of salesmen, purposely misled the public regarding it."

The housewife will see that now as always the most effective guaranty is that given by a manufacturer whose principles and character—his reputation—will not allow him to pack meanness, fraud and deceit with our foods.

The Westfield Standard is today the only safe guide to pure foods free from chemical taint. Select your food products carefully, reading the small type on the label and avoiding chemical preservatives, colors and flavors as outlined in the Westfield Standard below.

Here is the Food Standard of the Pure Food Town of Westfield, Mass

More exacting than Government Food Standards or State Food Laws:

"Foods shall not contain added ALUM, COPPER, FORMALDEHYDE, SULPHUROUS ACID or its Salts, BORIC ACID or its Salts, BENZOIC ACID or its Salts, FORMIC ACID or its Salts, HYDROFLUORIC ACID or its Salts, SALICYLIC ACID or its Salts, nor any other non-condimental preservative."

"Foods shall not be colored with COAL TAR DYES, nor with poisonous VEGETABLE COLORS, nor be contaminated with inert fillers, nor shall any substance be taken therefrom or added thereto so as to injuriously affect their quality, strength or purity."

"Foods shall be packed and sold under sanitary conditions and package goods shall bear no DISHONEST LABEL, nor labels bearing any EXaggerated or Obscure statements."

"For protection to yourself and your family, see that you buy only foods and beverages that are certified under 'The Westfield Standard.'"

"You will then be buying only products of high food value—wholesome and pure."

Geographical War Primer

Washington, D. C., April 7.—In a statement prepared today the National Geographic Society tells something of the colonial troops now on the firing line in the war in Europe. The statement says:

"Asia, Africa and Australasia have furnished their quotas of men to the fighting line. Among the most distinguished troops that have most distinguished themselves in European warfare are the French Turcos and the British Singhaloes. This is the first time since the beginning of the European battlefields, but the Turcos have been employed on the white continent several times.

"The Singhaloes are natives of Ceylon. There are, strictly speaking, about 2,500,000 of them. They are divided into the central and southern divisions of the island. They are members of the Aryan family by language, but, in blood, they are a very mixed race, though basically they are of the blood of the Singhaloes, upon whom the British have been employed on the white continent several times.

"The Singhaloes have remained a stationary folk since the opening of the Christian era. Their costumes, customs and manner of life are much the same as they were more than 2,000 years of appearance, the men of this people are peculiarly effeminate. Their bodies are slender and their features are delicate. Their dress is womanish, even to the extent of fastening their long hair back from the forehead by means of dainty combs. The men, also, wear earrings. Nevertheless, the Singhaloes have managed to cover themselves with glory by brilliant service in the fearful battlefields of Europe.

"The Turcos are a French military organization. The word 'Turco' is the name which the French have applied to those troops that they have formed out of natives of Algeria. They are of Arabic and negro stock, and are the best trained colonial troops in the world.

"The Turcos were organized in the first instance, as was also the case with the Foreign Legion, solely for employment in that French colony, France early found use for them in other fields. In 1859 the Turcos went through their first European campaign in Italy. These same troops won in their desperate fighting, proved one of the most serious obstacles to German success upon more than one battlefield. Again, in 1884, the Turcos saw service in the far distant French province in China. The Turcos have always distinguished themselves in hardy endurance and in reckless bravery."

BRITAIN'S DRINK BILL MORE THAN DOUBLE COST OF ARMY AND NAVY

The United Kingdom's liquor bill for 1913 was higher than in 1912, and the total for 1914 was above 1913, according to unofficial figures.

1913 $833,405,000
1912 $807,766,650

In the latter year the expenditures on defense were:

Army $138,245,000
Navy $239,390,000

Thus the drink bill more than doubled the combined army and navy expenditures.

It appears from the statistical Abstract of the British Empire, a government work, that the consumption, per capita, of spirits and beer in the last year under observation, 1909, measured in gallons, was as follows in the United Kingdom, compared with other great countries:

United Kingdom 0.70
Germany 1.58
France 1.32
Russia 7.10
United States 1.14

In 1913 the average expenditure per head for the year for drink was $18.10. The average per family of five persons was $90.50.

The average per head is highest in England, lower in Scotland, lowest in Ireland.

The total consumption of drink, in gallons, in the United Kingdom in the year was as follows:

Malt liquors 1,397,134,800 gallons
Wine 15,206,490 gallons
Spirits 10,070,000 gallons

The government revenue in 1913-14 from excise duties amounted in the United Kingdom to $197,950,000.

For 1914-15 the duties are estimated by the government at $198,250,000.

BETS 10 TO 1 WAR WILL END THIS FALL

The "books" made on the probable duration of the war, and posted through Lloyd's Exchange in London, now run as follows:

That war will end before May 1, 1915, 3 to 1 against.

That war will end before June 1, 1915, 10 to 1 against.

That war will end before September 1, 1915, 10 to 1 against.

That war will end before December 1, 1915, 10 to 1 on.

That war will end before March 1, 1916, 15 to 1 on.

That Germany will take Warsaw, 5 to 1 against.

Explanation of "on" and "against" terms as used by English bettors: "3 to 1 against," war ending May 1, 1915, means that for every 3 bets lost, 1 bet will win.

"10 to 1 on," the war ending before December 1, 1915, means that for every 10 bets lost, 1 bet will win.

It is evident that the English figure this way: The combatants are still so strong and evenly matched that there is little chance of peace during the coming summer. It is they think, about an even chance that they will be tired of fighting and ready to shake hands by September, and so that the bettors everybody will be so done up that there is almost no probability of fighting after the beginning of next winter.

SECOND LETTER SENT BY CORRESPONDENTS

WILLIAM BEAUCHAMP AND CHAS. CAIN ARE LOCKED UP AS SUSPICIOUS CHARACTERS.

NEXT VISIT IN FRANCE

Young Men Will Write Two More Letters Soon Of England And France. Say French Are Sociable.

William Beauchamp and Charles Cain have sent in their second letter to the Gazette, but intend to follow it up soon with two longer accounts of the conditions and their experiences in England and France. The letter given in the following paragraphs tells of their being locked up as suspicious characters in the war zone and of their hope to get into France soon. The letter is dated March 15th, and was written from South Ashford, Kent, England, and reads as follows:

South Ashford, Kent, England, March 15, 1915.

Gazette:

I suppose you have been saying sweet things about me because I haven't written. Please let me explain before you say anything more. First I want to tell you that I am all right, safe and sound, in the best boarding place I have ever had (except home), and the same applies to Beauchamp. Now for my explanation.

SMILE WITH ME! TAKE CASCARETS

FEEL BULLY! DON'T STAY BILLY! SICK, HEADACHY, CONSTIPATED.

SPEND 10 CENTS! REMOVE WINTER'S POISON FROM YOUR LIVER AND BOWELS.

Enjoy life! Spring is here and your system is filled with the winter's accumulation of bile and bowel poison which keeps you bilious, head-achy, dizzy, tongue coated, breath bad and stomach sour—Why don't you get a 10-cent box of Cascarets at the drug store and feel fine—Take Cascarets tonight and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced—Give Cascarets to children now.

I wrote my last letter in Birmingham. After that we were taken to London via Warwick and Stratford-on-Avon, Woodstock, and Oxford; then to Folkestone. From there we took a boat of Boulogne, France. Our adventures in England were very interesting and very pleasant. You won't believe all that I tell you about them. There is so much to tell about them that I am going to devote one letter to our English trip, and one to our stay in France. Both letters will be sent out within a week. This one is merely to assure you that I am O. K.

We intended to write from France. When we attempted to leave Boulogne the soldiers and gendarmes at the city gate stopped us. After a prolonged discussion they decided that our American passports were O. K., and allowed us to go on. We walked east on the road to St. Omer. Just as we were leaving Calais, we heard someone call. We turned, a gendarme marched up to us, looked over, and demanded after the manner of a rapid-firing gun:

"Ou allez-vous?" (Where are you going?)
"A Saint Omer." (To St. Omer.)
"Qui estes-vous?" (Who are you?)
"Voyageurs-americains." (American travelers.)
"Venez au caserne." (Come to the station.)

We went, and there our adventures began. We were cross-examined and then some; locked up; then questioned again; then locked up again. Next day we were sent to Boulogne. There we were marched to the Mairie, the Commissariat de Police, the Conseil de Guerre de la Region du Nord, the Palais de Justice, and other places. Finally we were searched and sent to the military prison of Boulogne, where we were locked up with twenty-four others—most of them arrested as suspicious characters for traveling in the zone without a laissez-passer. That is what we were in for.

To travel in France now you must get a laissez-passer in each city. They took all our belongings to be inspected. Next day we were released from prison, but sent to the barracks while the investigations were continued. The prison was so interesting and the prisoners so sociable (although their conversations were carried on in six languages) that we should have liked to stay for a week. The barracks were interesting too. Finally we were "remis en liberte," and invited to leave Boulogne. As it was a case of necessity we returned to Folkestone (pronounced Foekstun). We are now in South Ashford, Ashford is one of the main military bases in England. Here we can see and hear much about the war. Trains of wounded pass through. There are training camps everywhere. We hope to leave soon for Havre, or some other point on the French coast, south of the military zone. We have already had many jobs offered us here. You know the French are very sociable for civilian jobs in and about the trains, transports, and armies. In fact they are begging people who are not liable to be called out for service to work. There are posters all over the city asking for teachers, laborers, salesmen, gardeners, electricians, errand boys—everything—no experience required.

CHARLES CAIN.
P. S. To relieve you I want to say that while we were locked up in France, we were treated like guests, now known why France is popular. It's because the French are so sociable you can't help liking them.

STATE CONSUMERS MEET AT MADISON

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., April 8.—The Wisconsin Consumers' League will hold its annual convention here April 26 under the auspices of the Madison and University branches. Among the speakers will be Miss Mary Higgins, Boston, national label secretary. Several prominent social workers will attend.

WISCONSIN'S CHEESE MEETS A BIG DEMAND

Over One Hundred New Cheese Factories Are Established Since Demand Has Increased.

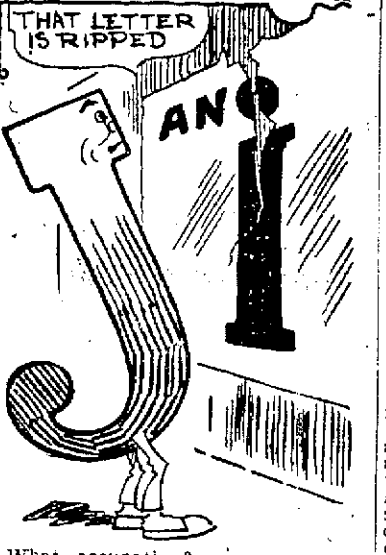

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Plymouth, Wis., April 8.—The universal demand for Wisconsin made cheese will result in the opening of over 100 new cheese factories in the state this year. This was the prediction today of local dealers who ship extensively to the eastern market.

Eastern buyers are responding to the call for the Badger product by going into the market instead of buying from jobbers. It is reported that one of the biggest cheese concerns in New York is about to open a branch in this state, probably in Milwaukee or Sheboygan. Other concerns in the east are expected to follow suit. Many local companies are in the process of organization throughout the dairy country.

There is still nearly 100,000 boxes of old cheese left in the state, mostly dated. The general demand for cheese has been reduced to 25 per cent of normal by cotton demoralization, and that trade is improving very slowly. There is a wide range of opinion as to the probable cheese prices this spring and early summer. One of the leading dealers of Sheboygan county predicted today that June cheese would be lower than last year and he would not be afraid to go short on that product at 14 1/2 cents. On the other hand, a dealer in Appleton, who handles a large percentage of the Outagamie county dairy products, recently said that butter would be cheaper for six months, beginning May 1, while cheese would be higher than in the corresponding months of last year. He based his opinion on the large supply of butter now in storage and the demand for cheese for the European armies.

"It may sound strange, but the failure of the cotton crop is less to the south than the cheese dealers in this state from a big loss," said a local dealer today. "Had it not been for the demoralization of the cotton business, the demand for cheese in the south would have been normal, and that, combined with the big exporters would have had their own representatives in Wisconsin, picking up all the cheese they could, and forcing the price up to a point where we could not have competed with them."

OTIS Smithback of Hanover, and Tom Olson of Chicago, were dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Ole Rynning Monday.

HELMS TELLS HOW TO TAKE CARE OF LAWNS

Using Good Seed, Good Loam, a Hoe, and a Good Mower and Roller a Person Can Make a Good Lawn, He Says.

In the spring one of the questions most frequently asked of horticultural people is "How can I make a lawn?" or "How can I remake a lawn and afterwards keep it in good condition?"

The answer to such a question, without going into details should be, by using good seed, a good loam, a hoe, a good lawn mower, a good roller and an abundance of "stick-to-itiveness."

The question is suggested, "What is a good lawn?" and the reply is, a satisfactory lawn is one with a smooth surface of evenly colored grass with a sod that is strong and elastic to the tread and on which the grass grows so fine and close that weeds cannot find entrance.

There are two conditions of soil which cause failure in a lawn. One where there is a sufficient depth of good loam on which the grass has gradually petered out allowing an ever increasing mass of weeds to push in and take its place, this can be remedied by first digging out the weeds, scratching deep into the soil with a sharp iron rake, raking it up as fine as possible, after doing this, sow grass seed liberally and roll the ground, then soak thoroughly.

The second condition for lawn failure is a poor quality of gravelly soil, there is nothing to do in such a case but to dig out the gravel and poor soil and put in that which is suitable. Of course if you are only striving for a temporary growth of grass it can be accomplished by the use of fertilizer. But for a permanent lawn the loam condition must be right.

Seeding—Go to some reputable firm and buy your seed there, they are in the business to stay and will treat you honestly, there is a wonderful difference in grass seed which can only be appreciated by those in the business. First class cleaned seed and that is what you want is worth a fair price. There are many kinds of grass which thrive under different conditions, one grows well in a sandy soil, and another in shade and it requires expert knowledge to choose the suitable varieties.

Weeds—Like the poor the weeds are always with us, and the only way to get rid of them is persistent fighting, the practical method is to dig them out and then make the grass grow so close that the weed cannot find entrance, make the best light in spring and fall as the damage from digging can easily be remedied at these times and will not be noticed as much as in summer. Dandelions should be taken out deep taking as much of the root as possible. In the case of the clover, the toughest proposition of all, it grows so low that the mower as usually set will not touch it. It is an annual and seeds itself each year, so if it is not removed before it is sown it is formed you are sure of a crop the following year, when the frost kills it, wherever it has been will be seen bare patches of ground. Where found it should be dug out with a rake. Waterbury you are a weed sprinkle a little seed and press the earth hard, after the work is done roll and water thoroughly.

A new front is being cut as often as necessary but not too closely to avoid cutting the root, the last cutting should not be later than Oct. 1. In old worn out lawns and on poor soil the light and soil fertilizer is required. Fertilizer can be sown broadcast at the rate of 3 to 5 pounds to the square rod.

Nitrate of soda will give immediate results and is a good thing to use. Nitrate should not be sown broadcast unless showers are expected, otherwise it is apt to burn the grass.

For small places it can be used in solution at the rate of one pound to fifty gallons of water and then sprinkled on the lawn. When your grass needs water put on enough so that it will sink into the ground for the use of the grass roots during the day, a light sprinkling freshens the color of the grass but is apt to evaporate in the next days sunning. A lawn to be attractive must be well kept, that is it must be smoothly mowed, all litter removed and the edges of the walks nicely trimmed.

STATE HAS NOT ENDED HOOF DISEASE COMBAT

Madison, Wis., April 8.—The long fight against foot and mouth disease by the state sanitary board, with large extraordinary expenses to keep it controlled, is not yet ended, and State Veterinarian Eliason has asked that an emergency fund of $10,000 be appropriated for the rest of the year. The application was made to the board consisting of the constitutional officers. Before the outbreaks arose the department had an unexpended balance of about $3,000, saved from its regular appropriation for 1913-1914, which was drawn upon to meet the emergency last fall. Expenses in fighting the epidemic in the last four months have been $4,000. The department's annual appropriation has been $15,440.

F. F. LEWIS TELLS OF ROUGH SEA TRIP FRISCO TO HAWAII

Writes Letter To Gazette At Sea.
Honolulu Is Popular Resort of Traveling People Of The World.

F. F. Lewis writes to the Gazette, a very interesting letter, concerning the various points of interest he has stopped off at, with Mrs. Lewis, and also of the rough sea voyage to the Hawaiian Islands, and to Honolulu. The letter was written on March 29th, at sea on board the S. S. Wilhelmnia. It reads as follows:

S. S. Wilhelmnia, At Sea,
March 29, 1915.

Since leaving home on the 4th of February, the days have been filled with the swift passing interests; too many to admit of enumeration at this time. The S. S. of this line that came in just before our departure from San Francisco, for Honolulu reports the roughest weather and water in the experience of old sailors. Winds at 50, 65 and for a short time 90 miles per hour. We sailed on the 10th and though the stress of the storm was over, the sea was still running in heavy swells that made the hardest of us "land lubbers" hug our berths for some two or three days.

The disturbance in temperature was considerable too making it hard to believe we were in tropical waters. The last two of the six days of the trip were more sultry, however, and repaid us for the discomforts of those preceding.

Our S. S. docked the morning of the 18th and, as we revelled in the weather and foliage of Honolulu corresponding to our month of June, the discomforts we had passed through were soon forgotten.

The Carnival, which is Hawaii's way of celebrating Washington's birthday and also the natal day of the islands which has been continued eight days; each day rivaling the preceding in interest. The program including pageant after pageant of song, parade, and military and historical legend, all leading up to the grand carnival of fun, music and illuminations of the final day, the 27th.

Following this came our trip to Hilo by steamer about 25 miles and by auto 31 miles to the volcano, Mt. Kilauea. This volcano entered upon a period of unusual activity last December, and, though the climax had passed before our arrival, the activity was much greater than when we were here two years ago.

A journal in which guests are permitted to record their impressions is kept in the volcano hotel. In pouring over its pages I found an article in verse, in German dialect, which I copied and which, with numerous changes that seemed to me desirable, I enclose herewith believing you will enjoy it as Mrs. Lewis and I have.

Travel to the islands has been more than usually free this spring. Residents are looking for further increase as the season of World's Fair progresses.

As the advantages the islands have to offer become more generally appreciated this increase will continue till these islands have become the popular resort and breathing place of the traveling public of the world.

A movement is under way to have the federal government set aside a large tract, which shall include Kilauea and nearby features of interest for a National park, thus dedicating these beauty and wonder spots for all time to the people of the U. S. at large. Such movement will undoubtedly have the support of all who have any knowledge of the marvellously wonderful beauty of the section.

I finished reading the "Broad Highway" last night and I want to thank you for the great pleasure you gave me in it. Channing and Peter Smith are the loveliest and noblest characters I have met in a long time. Then too, we must not omit Black Jack, who developed so richly. We remain a few days in San Francisco, then to Southern California and home via the S. P. through New Orleans. Cordially,
F. F. LEWIS.

BLANKS ARE READY FOR CORN CONTEST

Boys Can Secure Papers For Competition in Corn Contest by Writing
Commercial Club Secretary.

And now for the Boys' Acre Contest! Below are the rules for the year 1915. Forty-two boys finished the contest last year and this year we should have more. Rock County is a good place to grow corn so the boys can be pretty sure of the co-operation of Dame Nature.

The acre may be in any part of a larger field of corn, so does not require a separate plot. Twenty-five prizes are offered and a free trip to Madison is assured all those who enter and stick to the work through the season.

Besides these prizes and the trip there's the corn to be gained and the knowledge and experiences which are worth a great deal.

It really looks as if this contest was all good and no loss and hope for a large class of contestants.

And for the boys under 13 there's the 10-acre contest, with not less than twenty prizes of merchandise donated by the merchants of the Commercial club. It's a great thing to grow good ears of corn and corn will grow for boys, just as well as for men, sometimes better. We hope for a good enrollment in this contest also.

Here is an opportunity for the enterprising boy to beat his big brother, or possibly his father and that will be as much fun as getting a prize. Who will be first to fill out and send in an entry blank? If you have not received an entry blank write to the secretary of the Commercial club for one.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Wis., Apr. 8.—The ninth day of April will be the fiftieth anniversary of the surrender of the Confederate Army under General Lee, practically the end of the war. There was no fighting after that. Arrangements are being made in many places to observe the occasion in some fitting way. In commemoration of this event the patriotic instructor of the Woman's Relief Corps of this city has arranged a fitting program for the evening of April eight at the Cutoon Memorial hall, free of charge. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend this jubilee meeting.

Following is the program:
Musical selection—Phonograph.
Solemn prayer—Rev. J. H. B. Cook.
Address—H. R. Hood, Madison department of the patriotic instructor of the G. A. R.
Song—H. R. Hood, Allen, William, Chas. and Paul Skinner.
Address—Att. Hal R. Martin.
Trio—Violin, cello, and piano—Misses Lucile and Kathleen Cutoon and Madeline Williams.
Musical selection—Phonograph.

At three o'clock yesterday afternoon fire started from a bonfire of stumps in the house occupied by Earl Cook. The fire burned from the cellar to the roof on the inside and destroyed all the inside of the house. The owner of the house carried some insurance, but it was not enough to cover the loss. Most of furniture and household utensils were saved by the neighbors and friends who arrived before the fire was in full blaze. No one was in the house at the time the fire started and no one was injured.

GREAT GROWTH IN THE USE OF SCHOOLHOUSES AS COMMUNITY CENTERS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., April 8.—A steady, substantial and rapid increase in the use of Wisconsin public schoolhouses as community centers is indicated in the responses to the questionnaire sent out by the university extension bureau of community center development to 900 Wisconsin school principals.

The report shows that 357 public schoolhouses have now begun to be systematically used as community centers, as compared with 265 buildings so used in 1913 and 86 in 1911. The total number of meetings of a community character, according to this report in 1911 was 1,265. In 1913 the number reached 2,452. Last season the number reached the high mark of 7,932.

Systematic district organization of the citizens was achieved in five communities in 1911; in fifteen, two years later; and in 111 last season. The number of school buildings used for polling places according to this report was 12 in 1911; 50 in 1913; last season 72.

Increase in the number of districts in which the schoolhouse was used as a club-house for young people between school age and maturity is shown by the fact that in 1911, 24 reported this use; in 1913, 60; while last season the young people of 102 districts had this provision.

In 1911 there were no communities in the state in which provision was made for two cities, Milwaukee and Superior. At present Milwaukee, Superior, Kenosha and Neillville, and the villages of Sauk City, Osseo and De Soto have begun this provision for systematic and continuous community center development.

NEGATIVE SPEAKERS AT EDGERTON FRIDAY

Postponed Debate Will Be Staged Tomorrow Night.—Janesville Girls Have Good Chance to Win.

The third debate in the new girls' triangular debating league, composed of teams representing the Fort Atkinson, Edgerton and Janesville high schools, will take place Friday night at Edgerton between the Janesville negative team and the Edgerton affirmative trio.

This debate should have been held on the same night as the other two, but had to be postponed due to the illness of one of the Edgerton speakers. As the result, both teams are ready to present a strong fight. This debate will probably mean the settling of the championship in the league when the total decisions and percentage markings have been counted.

The local negative to oppose Edgerton is composed of Hildegard Woolf, leader, Constance Allison and Elizabeth Cordell. If Janesville is to have a chance for the title of the league, these girls must win tomorrow night, as the local affirmative lost 2 to 1 here two weeks ago to the Fort Atkinson negative. The question for discussion is, "Resolved, That an amendment be passed to the federal constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage."

The Coverly
(By the House of Kuppenheimer)

FROM Bar Harbor to the Golden Gate—this season, Fashion will approve the Coverly Coat.
The COVERLY, as here illustrated, is a single-breasted, form-fitting, button-through coat, with patch pockets. Then there is the still more popular Roland, a 40-inch coat, with much the same front, but a half box back.

These are but two of eight distinguished models by the House of Kuppenheimer; a Coverly series worthy of this "Greatest Overcoat House in America."

Single and double-breasted, form-fitting or loose back, in wonderful shades of Golden Brown, Heather and Wood Brown, Tan, Olive, Drab, Khaki, Sand, Gray, Oxford, Stone and the very new mixtures in Greens and Browns—nature tints of the gorse and bracken.

For all 'round satisfaction, no better material was ever made than a sterling Coverly cloth, but like everything fine, it is imitated and cheapened beyond recognition.

The ordinary Coverly coat of commerce is no more the rich Kuppenheimer Top Coat than a piece of pink glass is a pigeon-blood ruby.

Prices—$20 to $30

Splitting Headaches Stopped!

Men and Women by the Hundreds are Being Driven to Insanity and Suicide by Headache's Continued Torture.

No words can describe the suffering. Your brain seems like a ball of fire, your skull ready to crack, a thousand hammers beat your eyeballs.

"Oh, that awful agony!"

And all this suffering is useless. Headache is only a symptom of some other trouble. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred that other trouble can be traced to the stomach or liver. Headache powders, however, they weaken the heart and only give temporary relief at most.

Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea relieves headaches by removing the cause. The speedy relief will surprise you. The stomach and bowels are toned up—poisonous matter is quickly removed, the blood is cleared and made richer and you feel better every day.

Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea is your druggist's today. Take it tonight. Be sure you get the genuine. It now comes in two forms—tablets, and the price of either is 35c.

Testing Precious Stones.
The science of optics has in the last year or so given much aid to jewelers in making tests that are said to be absolutely conclusive as to the nature of a gem. The refractive index, or the power of bending light rays, is determined as to precious stones in the same way as that of the spectacle lenses which the opticians sell.

Now is the time to get rid of any household article you do not wish to store or have no use for.

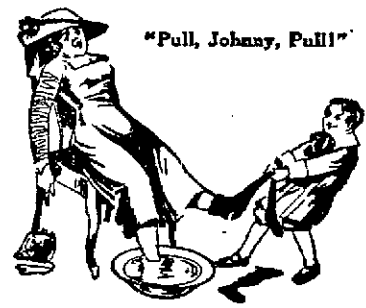

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Evidently Father's Taste Has Very Little Value—Revised

BY F. LEIPZIGER

"TIZ" FOR SORE TIRED FEET--AH

"TIZ" is grand for aching, swollen, sweaty, calloused feet or corns.

Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet; no more swollen, bad-smelling, sweaty feet. No more soreness in corns, callouses, bunions.

No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "TIZ." "TIZ" is the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which pull up the feet. "TIZ" cures your foot trouble so you'll never tramp or tramp up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore and swollen. Think of it, no more foot misery, no more agony from corns, callouses or bunions.

Get a 25 cent box at any drug store or department store and get instant relief. Wear smaller shoes. Just once try "TIZ." Get a whole year's foot comfort for only 25 cents. Think of it.

Favorite Star.

From ancient days Regulus has been one of the favorite stars of mariners and so-called astrologers. The ancient names designated it as the king of stars. In its apparent passage through the path of the zodiac the sun is almost between us and Regulus, and once a month the moon is near it and at times comes directly between it and our earthly vision, or "occults" it. For this alone Regulus ought to be one of the fascinating stars at this time of the year.

BLACK IS WHITE
By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

COPYRIGHT, 1914 BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

On the corner of the table lay a great heap of manuscript—the story of his life up to the escape from Lhasa! The sheets of paper had been scattered over the floor by the ruthless hand of the surgeon, but now they were back in perfect order, replaced by another hand. He thought of the final chapter that would have to be written if he went on with the journal. It would have to be written, for it was the true story of his life. He strode swiftly to the table. In another instant the work of many months would have been torn to bits of waste paper. But his hand was stayed. Someone had stopped outside his door. He could not hear a sound and yet he knew that a hand was on the heavy latch. He suddenly recalled his remark to the old men. He would have to write the final chapter after all.

He waited. He knew that she was out there, collecting all of her strength for the coming interview. She was fortifying herself against the crisis that was so near at hand. To his own surprise and distress of mind, he found himself trembling and suddenly deprived of the fierce energy that he had stored up for the encounter. He wondered whether he would command the situation after all, notwithstanding his righteous charge against her. She had wondrously sought to entice Frederic—she had planned to dishonor her husband—she had proved herself unwholesome and false and her heart was evil! And yet he wondered whether he would be able to stand his ground against her.

So far she had ruled. At the outset he had attempted to assert his authority as the master of the house in this trying, heart-breaking hour, and she had calmly waved him aside. His first thought had been to take his proper place at the bedside of his victim and there to remain until the end, but she had said: "You are not to go in. You have done enough for one day. If he must die, let it be in peace and not in fear. You are not to go in," and he had crept away to hide! He remembered her words later on when Hodder sent for him to come down. "Not in fear," she had said.

On the edge of the table, where it had reposed since Doctor Hodder dropped it there, was the small photograph of Matilde. He had not touched it, but he had bent over it for many minutes at a time, studying the sweet, never-to-be-forgotten, and yet curiously unfamiliar features of that long-ago loved one. He looked at it now as he waited for the door to open, and his thoughts leaped back to the last glimpse he had ever had of that adorable face. Then it was white with despair and misery—here it looked up at him with smiling eyes and the languor of unbroken tranquility.

He clenched his strong, lean hands to keep them from shaking. A new wonder filled him as he allowed his eyes to measure the distance to the floor and to sweep the strong, powerful frame that trembled and was cold. He was a giant in strength, and yet he trembled at the approach of this slender, frail creature who paused at his gates to gather courage for the attack! He was sorely afraid and he could not understand his fear. With one of his sinewy hands he could crush the life out of her slant, white throat—and yet he was afraid of her—physically afraid of her.

Suddenly he realized that the room was quite dark. He dashed to the window and threw aside the broad, thick curtains. A stream of afternoon sunshine rushed into the room. He would have light this time; he would not be deceived by the darkness, as he had been once before. This time he would see her face plainly. There should be no sickening illusion. He straightened his tall figure and waited for the door to open.

CHAPTER XX.

A Sister's Story.

If she hesitated outside the room to summon the courage to face the man who would demand so much of her, there was nothing in her manner now to indicate that such had been the case. She approached him without a symptom of nervousness or irresolution. Her dark eyes met his without wavering—and there was purpose in them. She devoted a single glance of surprise to the uncurtained window on entering the door and an instant later scrutinized the floor with unmistakable interest as if expecting to find something there to account for his motive in admitting the glare of light—something to confound and accuse her. But there was no fear or apprehensiveness in the look. She was not afraid.

Brood remained standing, a little beyond the broad ray of light, expecting her to advance into its full, revealing glare. She stopped, however, in the shadow opposite. It was he who moved forward into the light, and there was a deep searching look in his eyes. An instant it was gone; he had satisfied himself. The curious experience of the morning had been a phantasm, an illusion, a mockery. There was nothing in this woman's smoldering eyes to suggest the soft, luminous loveliness of Matilde's. He drew a long, deep breath of relief.

She had put on a rather plain white blouse, open at the neck. The cuffs were rolled up nearly to the elbows, evidence that she had been using her hands in some active employment and had either forgotten or neglected to restore the sleeves to their proper position. A chic black walking-skirt lent to her trim, erect figure a suggestion of girlishness.

Her arms hung straight down at her sides, limply it would have seemed at first glance, but in reality they were rigid.

"I have come, as I said I would," she said, after a long, tense silence. Her voice was low, huskier than ever, but without a tremor of excitement. "You did not say you would wait for me here, but I knew you would do so. The hour of reckoning has come. We must pay, both of us. I am not frightened by your silence, James, nor am I afraid of what you may say or do. First of all, it is expected that Frederic will die. Doctor Hodder has proclaimed it. He is a great surgeon. He ought to know. But he doesn't know—do you hear? He does not know. I shall not let him die."

"One moment, if you please," said her husband coldly. "You may spare me the theatrics. Moreover, we will not discuss Frederic. What we have to say to each other has little to do with that poor wretch downstairs. This is your hour of reckoning, not his. Bear that!"

"You are very much mistaken," she interrupted, her gaze growing more fixed than before. "He is a part of our reckoning. He is the one great character in this miserable, unlooked-for tragedy. Will you be so kind as to draw those curtains? And do me the honor to allow me to sit in your presence." There was infinite scorn in her voice. "I am very tired. I have not been idle. Every minute of my waking hours belongs to your son, James Brood—but I owe this half-hour to you. You shall know the truth about me, as I know it about you. I did not count on this hour ever being a part of my life, but it has to be, and I shall face it without weeping over what might have been. Will you draw the curtains?"

He hesitated a moment and then jerked the curtains together, shutting out the pitiless glare.

"Will you be seated—there?" he said quietly, pointing to a chair at the end of the table.

She switched on the light in the big lamp instead of taking the chair indicated, sank into one on the opposite side of the table, with the mellow light full upon her lovely, serious face. "Sit there," she said, signifying the chair he had requested her to take. "Please sit down," she went on impatiently, as he continued to regard her forbiddingly from his position near the window.

"I shall be better able to say what I have to say standing," he said significantly.

"Do you expect me to plead with you for forgiveness?" she inquired, with an unmistakable look of surprise.

"You may save yourself the humiliation of such—"

"But you are very gravely mistaken," she interrupted. "I shall ask nothing of you."

"Then we need not prolong the—"

"I have come to explain, not to plead," she went on resolutely. "I want to tell you why I married you." You will not find it a pleasant story, nor will you be proud of your conquest. It will not be necessary for you to turn me out of your house. I entered it with the determination to leave it in my own good time. I think you would better sit down."

He looked at her fixedly for a moment, as if striving to materialize a thought that lay somewhere in the back of his mind. He was vaguely conscious of an impression that he could unravel all this seeming mystery without a suggestion from her if given the time to concentrate his mind on the vague, hazy suggestion that tormented his memory.

He sat down opposite her, and rested his arms on the table. The lines about his mouth were rigid, uncompromising, but there was a look of wonder in his eyes.

She leaned forward in her chair, the better to watch the changing expression in his eyes as she progressed with her story. Her hands were clenched tightly under the table's edge.

"Do You Remember When You First Saw Me, James Brood?"

"You are looking into my eyes—as you have looked a hundred times," she said after a moment. "There is something in them that has puzzled you since the night when you looked into them across that great ballroom in London. You have always felt that they were not new to you, that you have had them constantly in front of you for ages. Do you remember when you first saw me, James Brood?"

He stared, and his eyes widened. "I never saw you in my life until that night in London, I—"

"Look closely. Isn't there something more than doubt in your mind as you look into them now?"

"I confess that I have always been puzzled by—by something I cannot understand in— But all this leads to nothing," he broke off harshly. "We are not here to mystify each other but to—"

"To explain mysteries, that's it, of course. You are looking. What do you see? Are you not sure that you looked into my eyes long, long ago? Are there not moments when my voice is familiar to you, when it speaks to you out of—"

He sat up, rigid as a block of stone. "Yes, by heaven, I have felt it all along. Today I was convinced that the unbelievable had happened. I saw something that—" He stopped short, his lips parted.

She waved her hand in the direction of the Buddha. "Have you never petitioned your too solid friend over there to unravel the mystery for you? In the quiet of certain lonely, speculative hours have you not wondered where you had seen me before—long, long before the night in London? In all the years that you have been trying to convince yourself that Frederic is not your son, has there not been the vision of—"

"What are you saying to me? Are you trying to tell me that you are Matilde?"

"If not Matilde, then who am I, pray?" she demanded.

He sank back, frowning. "It cannot be possible. I would know her a thousand years from now. You cannot trick me into believing— But, in God's name, who are you?" He leaned forward again, clutching the edge of the table. "By heaven, I sometimes think you are a ghost come to haunt me, to torture me. What trick, what magic is behind all this? Has her soul, her spirit, her actual being found a lodging place in you, and have you been sent to curse me for—"

She rose half-way out of her chair, leaning farther across the table. "Yes, James Brood, I represent the spirit of Matilde Valeska; if you will have it so. Not sent to curse you, but to love you. That's the pity of it all. I swear to you that it is the spirit of Matilde that urges me to love you and to spare you now. It is the spirit of Matilde that stands between her son and death. But it is not Matilde who confronts you here and now, you may be sure of that. Matilde loved you. She loves you now, even in her grave. You will never be able to escape from that wonderful love of hers. If there have been times—and heaven knows there were many, I know—when I appeared to love you for myself, I swear to you that I was moved by the spirit of Matilde. I—I am as much mystified, as greatly puzzled as yourself. I came here to hate you, and I have loved you—yes, there were moments when I actually loved you."

Her voice died away into a whisper. For many seconds they sat looking into each other's eyes, neither possessing the power to break the strange spell of silence that had fallen upon them.

"No, it is not Matilde who confronts you now, but one who would not spare you as she did up to the hour of her death. You are quite safe from ghosts from this hour on, my friend. You will never see Matilde again, though you look into my eyes till the end of time. Frederic may see, may feel the spirit of his mother, but you—ah, no! You have seen the last of her. Her blood is in my veins, her wrongs are in my heart. It was she with whom you fell in love and it was she who married six months ago, but now the curtain is lifted. Don't you know me now, James? Can your memory carry you back twenty-three years and deliver you from doubt and perplexity? Look closely, I say. I was six years old then and—"

Brood was glaring at her as one stupefied. Suddenly he cried out in a loud voice: "Heaven help me, you are—you are the little sister? The little Therese?"

She was standing now, leaning far over the table, for he had shrunk down into his chair.

The lawyer was drawing up old Furrow's will.

"I hereby bequeath all my property to my wife," dictated the son of the soil. "Got that?"

"Yes," answered the lawyer.

"On condition that she marries again within a year."

The legal light sat back, puzzled. "But why?" he asked.

The aged farmer smiled. "Because," was the reply, "I want somebody to be sorry I died!"

During a certain athletic event at Brown University the students of a certain professor's class, well aware that their studies had been neglected, were prepared for reproof, but not for just the way in which it came.

At the end of the hour the professor slammed down his book on the desk and exclaimed:

"That's the worst recitation I ever listened to! Why, I've actually done nine-tenths of it myself!"

An examination was being held in little Emma's school and one of the questions asked was: "Upon what do hibernating animals subsist during the winter?" Emma thought for several minutes and then wrote: "On the hope of a coming spring."

When on his way to evening service, the new minister of the village met a rising young business man of the place, whom he was anxious to interest in the church.

"Good evening, my young friend," he said, solemnly. "Do you ever attend a place of worship?"

"Yes, indeed, sir; every Sunday night," replied the young fellow with a smile. "I'm on my way to see her now."—National Monthly.

Love That Endures.

Men and women may not forget marriage the law of human nature that that which is not expressed dies. And any love that is to endure and to grow must express itself in multiple little ways. It is a serious matter that the repeated word of love and praise, the caress, the kiss, and the thoughtful attention should begin to fail.—Delineator.

Fortified Tires

Have Pushed Millions of Rocks from the Tire Road

They have saved waste and trouble to hundreds of thousands of motorists. The result is that last year, despite some hundred rivals, men bought about one Goodyear for every car in use.

The rocks that remain are Mishap and Misuse. No tire can ever avoid them. But if you'll judge tires by merit, not by luck, you are bound to come to Goodyears. You'll find they average best.

The Rocks Avoided

We have saved millions of rim-cuts, blowouts and loose treads by features exclusive to Goodyears. We have brought you security through our piano-wire base.

Our All-Weather tread—exclusive to Goodyears—has minimized punctures, tread wear and skidding. It is tough and very thick. The grips are sharp-edged and resistless.

All these protections—the best ever developed—are in Goodyear Fortified Tires alone.

No-Rim-Cut Tires—On-Air Cured With All-Weather Treaders Smooth

3 Price Reductions

Our last big reduction—on February 1st—made the third in two years, totaling 45 per cent. Thus, as our output increases, you get more and more for your money. Be fair with yourself—try these tires. Any dealer will supply you.

CASH IN ON THE ODDS AND ENDS

Do you realize that there's more real money "laying around the house" than you'd had any idea of?

Well, there is.

How long is it since you took an "inventory of odds and ends?"

Well, why not?

Why not check up the "old things" down in the basement? That old rooker and davenport, the pictures you had removed when the guest room was done over, etc., the odd dishes of the old set, the old range, the old stove, the carpet sweeper (you need a new one anyway)—make up a list of all of them—and then put a Classified Ad in the Want Columns of the Gazette and get the money. Why not?

Thousands of people need those very things—glad to buy them and pay for them—and fix them up.

Why not "cash the odds and ends?" This is what Want Ads are really for, if people only knew it; and you might just as well "get what they're worth" as to "throw them out." Why not?

Want ads cost a cent a word per insertion. If you pay cash with order you save one-fourth.

HOLD LAST RITES FOR OTTO C. LONG

Hundreds Attend Funeral of Highly Respected Town of Center Farmer on Wednesday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Footville, April 8.—Hundreds of neighbors, friends and relatives gathered on Wednesday afternoon to pay their tribute of respect to the late Otto C. Long, one of the most highly esteemed men of the town of Center. Funeral services were held at two o'clock at the Christian church here, the services being in charge of Rev. I. R. Spencer, the pastor; Rev. G. E. Zellmer of Evansville, pastor of the Evangelical church of Center; and Rev. H. J. Kolhepp of Eau Claire, former pastor of the Lutheran church. The pallbearers were: John Goldsmith, John Weisenberg, John Davis, Charles Whitmore, Charles Solk and Hart Snyder. Interment was made in the Center cemetery. Mrs. Long was unable to attend her husband's funeral as she is seriously ill at her home and under the care of a nurse.
Mr. Long was one of the best regarded men in this part of the country. He was an enterprising farmer and business man, honorable and upright in his dealings, a faithful friend and loyal neighbor. He was a director in the Bank of Footville and was at all times interested in the progress and advancement of his community. Besides his wife two children survive, daughter, Lulu, and a son, Harry, both living at home.

ANOTHER MUNICIPAL MARKET BROACHED.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Chicago, April 8.—Illinois farmers will be given stalls in a vast municipal market to display their truck products according to Seymour Stedman recently socialist candidate for mayor. Stedman was a member of the forty-ninth Illinois assembly.
"Old Water Street should go," he said. "Instead of having a street which is the connecting link between the grower and the consumer, I would have a municipal market in which produce could be sold direct to consumer."
Another socialist contention was for the taking over of the city telephone. Stedman said the city could operate it at a big profit, and that $35 per week would be the minimum wage. Under this plan the company would give employment to more people than under private ownership, Stedman asserted.

MILITARY ATTACHE TO BERLIN RECALLED

Major George T. Langhorne.
Mystery surrounds the recalling of Major George T. Langhorne, U. S. military attache, from Germany. Pro-German dispatches were sent to this country bearing the major's signature. While it is not believed that Langhorne sent them, no other reason can be discovered for the action of the government in asking him to come home.

"TM CRAZY IN LOVE," SAYS WEALTHY MAN'S DAUGHTER OF HALLBOY HUSBAND

Mrs. Isabel Bernheimer Murray.

Isabel Bernheimer, nineteen-year-old daughter of Charles Daly Bernheimer, millionaire tenant in a de luxe apartment house in New York city, eloped with James Murray, doorman of the house, and is today known as Mrs. James Murray. Desperate efforts were made by the parents and relatives of the young bride to get her to leave her husband, but she refused all overtures and avowed, "I will never leave Jim as long as I live. I'm crazy in love."

Evansville News

Evansville, April 8.—The free attraction committee of the big Rock county fair yesterday entered into a contract with the Zayno troupe of Milwaukee, to furnish free attractions at the coming fair. Many new feats will be introduced to the fair going public, among them being the Colonial dance, fancy and trick skating, hand, head and foot balancing and a comic acrobatic act. This company is highly recommended and sure to please, each member of the troupe being an artist.
The following new books have been placed upon the shelves of the Junior college library: Life of Andrew Jackson, by Sears; Egypt, Its People and Products, by Kleininger; The Temple, by Edersheim; Life of David Livingstone, by Blaikie; Pioneers of France in the New World, by Parkham; McKinley's Masterpiece, by Pagel; The Teachings of the Brooks, by Willett; Prayers of the Faith, by Gray; Experimental Electrical Testing, by various contributors; Chemistry, by Blanchard; Water, Physiology, by Oerton.
The "500" club was entertained Tuesday night by Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hull, the evening being spent in playing Five Hundred. Mark Hull, host, won the first prize, Willis Miller being the proud recipient of the consolation reward. The guests of honor, non-members of the club, were Miss Theresa Keeley of Janesville and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bodenberger of this city.
Mrs. E. S. Cary spent yesterday in Janesville with her mother, Mrs. David Clark, who is ill.

Taking Care of the Children.
No parent would consciously be careless of the children. Joe A. Rozmaria, Clarkson, Neb., uses Foley's Honey and Tar for his two children for croup, coughs and colds. He says, "We are never without Foley's Honey and Tar in the house. A distressing cough, sleepless nights, and raw, inflamed throat lead to a run-down condition in which the child is not able to resist contagious or infectious diseases. Foley's Honey and Tar is truly healing and prompt in action. It relieves coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. W. T. Sherer."

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.

Fleck, Jr., were passengers to Milwaukee Wednesday.
Mrs. August Sornow of Janesville, was the guest to her parents and sisters and Mrs. Jacob Mueller and the Misses Mueller, the first of the week.
